

Shorts Night

Spring
Season
2012

After the success of the Ospreys, this week's showing is a variety of short films to try and show the different skills needed in a film which doesn't have the luxury of time to develop a theme. How do you make a thriller in two minutes?

We've tried to add a few award winning films this time; short films are not just made by people who can't afford to make long ones, they are an art form in their own right. This is acknowledged at most levels, right up to the Oscars.

We'll start with a couple of the winners from the Virgin Media Shorts competition, which show very well how to work with almost no time.

Then we have a longer drama set in our local hills, which is moving and funny, followed by the winner of the BAFTA award (which was also shortlisted for the Oscars), an animated short stroll through 50 years.

We have a couple of films from abroad to add to the mix and then we'll come back locally with a 'docu-verity' film and the two winners of the Osprey awards from the weekend.
